Spruce Tree House

Winter is a special time to visit Mesa Verde National Park. Visit the Chapin Mesa Archeological Museum; join a free ranger-guided tour of Spruce Tree House; drive the Mesa Top Loop Road; and explore a variety of cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, and hiking opportunities. All activities depend on weather conditions. Please check with a ranger for trail and road conditions before beginning any of the listed activities.

You can still view many of the Chapin Mesa cliff dwellings. However, due to winter road conditions, you might have to hike or ski to overlooks. Interpretive trail and site guide booklets are sold at Chapin Mesa Archeological Museum and at sites on the Mesa Top Loop. For additional park information, tune your radio to AM 1610.

There are no overnight accommodations in the park. Far View Lodge and Morefield Campground are closed for the winter season. Roadside camping and overnight parking are not permitted. Overnight accommodations are available in nearby communities.

Free Ranger-Guided Tour

Spruce Tree House, the one cliff dwelling open this time of year, can only be entered on a ranger-guided tour. This tour is strenuous and the path can be icy. Dress warmly for the one-hour, outdoor tour which begins at the Chapin Mesa Archeological Museum.

Mesa Verde's Best-Preserved Cliff Dwelling

The tour requires a 100ft (30m) descent and ascent on a winding, paved path. Total walking distance is ½-mile (1km) round trip. Meet the ranger at the museum desk five minutes before the tour time. Tours are offered daily at 10:00 a.m., 1:00 p.m., and 3:30 p.m.

A chance to see wildlife...

Mountain Lion paw prints

If you think you won't see much in Mesa Verde in winter, think again. Winter is the best time to see signs of wildlife in Mesa Verde National Park. These mountain lion prints were found in the snow near Spruce Tree House. Mountain lion tracks are unusual, but keep your eye out for elk, deer, bobcats, and turkeys. Blue grouse, golden eagles, and coyotes are commonly seen along the road between Park Point and Geologic Overlook. Please drive carefully; it is common for rabbits to run across the road with little warning.
